1. Light action in south and northeast sectors--South Korean forces made limited gains in the north and east sectors, while UN defenders in the south were subjected to almost continuous small-unit probing attacks. UN naval units fired close support missions in the Pohang area; aircraft from two carriers attacked targets along the east coast. Air action continued in close support of ground troops, and B-29's hit the marshalling yards in the North Korean east coast city of Chongjin.
